Carriage House Receives Outstanding Service Award from Group Publishing

Boulder, Colorado. Yesterday Group Publishing recognized the Carriage House Homeless Community Center for providing outstanding service to homeless, indigent residents and working poor of Boulder. The Carriage House received an award for $25,000. Mary Katherine Jones, Volunteer Coordinator at the Carriage House was initially speechless and tearful when she received the award on behalf of the agency. "We had applied for a $1,000 community grant and I was shocked and thrilled. I was getting ready to leave when I heard our agency being described."

More than 70 charitable organizations from Northern Colorado were honored at Group Publishing's 11th Annual Community Service Awards. Group gave $61,000 in cash awards to distinguished charitable organizations in Northern Colorado. Group Publishing began over 30 years ago in CEO Thom Schultz's home in Loveland. Since that humble beginning, they now have more than 325 staff members. Our major product areas—including books, magazines, videos, curriculum products, workcamps, and events—reach both national and international markets.

The Carriage House Homeless Community Center offers many important services for the homeless and working poor residents of Boulder such as meals, showers, tokens, free voicemail, computer access, computer tutoring, resume preparation, daily classes and/or support groups, medical and mental health outreach, haircuts and individual assistance with goals such as getting identification or employment.
